Bill Seeks Control Of US Intelligence

CPYRGHT

Sentinel Washington Bureau
Washington, D. C. A watch dog committee to oversee operations of the central intelligence agency and other federal intelligence agencies was proposed Tuesday in a bill introduced by Rep. Kastenmeier (D-Wis.).

The bill would create a joint committee of seven representatives and seven senators to supervise all of the nation's intelligence activities.

Kastenmeier said the need for such a committee is pointed up by the increasing number of intelligence activities in federal government, their overlapping jurisdictions, their involvement with colleges and universities and the present lack of congressional supervision.

Kastenmeier also introduced bills, to abolish the death penalty for capital crimes and to establish the St. Croix national scenic riverway which would preserve portions of the St. Croix and Namakagon rivers as wilderness areas.
